Several Carson gentlemen last evening started to the fire at a good rate of speed. They met several other persons turning a corner who were coming in an opposite direction. Result, a collision and a few bruises, accompanied with some complimentary remarks.

Not all the people who have to do with postage stamps know that if damaged by sticking together they may be returned to the postmaster and fresh ones received in exchange. The same is true of unused stamped envelopes which have been spoiled in any manner.—Weekly.

Eugene Field has written a delightful little poem on the "Click of the Ice," and describes the raptures of a man at 5 in the morning who rings for ice water and hears the music of the tinkerty klink of the ice as the boy comes up the hall. He hits a tender chord in the heart of many a man who has gone to bed at 2 with a deep jag and regards the boy with a pitcher of ice water as a ministering angel.

PINE NUT.

The Sunday Excursion Small, But the Camp All Right.

The excursion to Pine Nut which was to come off Sunday last was postponed on account of a number of people failing to take advantage of the low rate, when it came to the final arrangement. Many expressed a wish to go, but at the last moment concluded that the Sunday rest movement in Nevada ought to have a few supporters, and remained at home.

This dwindled the passengers down so low that the stage made money staying in Carson. Three private teams went out, however, and the occupants made the new camp lively for a time. Locators readjusted their monuments and further defined their claims. Little prospecting was done as the thermometer touched 103 in the shade about midday.

The hills are now dotted with prospect holes and many show rich rock on the surface, while all point to the fact that the formation underneath is most all gold bearing quartz and rich at that.

The Zirn mine is everything claimed for it. Many people understood that Zirn intended to open his mine for inspection, but he claims that nothing of the kind ever came from him. In an interview he says:

"Prospectors come here that are absolute strangers to me, men I never saw in my life, and request me to show them my mine. I am not prepared to have any trouble with miners and I am always willing to show them what I can about this section, but as for making a clean show of the exact spot where this rich gold is taken, that I can not do. The vein is four feet wide where I get it and unless the investigator is known to me, or has a letter from my partner, Otto Shultz, I will not allow him near the mine. I have already been put to the necessity of guarding it and do not like to run a risk by opening it to every man that happens to straggle through this section. I learn to-day that my mine was to be opened. I don't know where the idea originated, and as for myself I am a Catholic and intend to have a few hours leisure to day [Sunday].

"Yes; I have been here nearly nine years and seldom go to town, which accounts for my care in placing confidence in my faces. I have taken a few hours in a few hours and any one could do the same. When the vein is not being worked I cover it up and it requires some little time to open it.

"I made the first strike in 1892 and from time to time have contemplated in my search. It was pay rock from the first, but I did not make this recent strike until a few weeks ago and then I found the richest ledge ever seen in the State of Nevada.

"Virginia City people seem to think this a huge joke, but if the mining editor of the Virginia Enterprise will come out here I will show him gold in formations of rock that he never heard of. I do not consider him a competent man to write up the mineral formation of this country. He has never seen anything like this in his life and is in no way fitted to handle this question. Send him out here and I will prove all I say.

My main ledge is two hundred and twenty-seven feet wide and all good rock.

"Yes, the assays in the rich vein range in value from $20,000 to $80,000, and there are other veins in these hills just like it. The gold is here and any man who has a claim will do well by holding on to it.

"I wish to be understood at once and for all that strangers cannot enter my mine unless as above stated," and with this Zirn settled back in his chair with independent ease and carried out his original idea that Sunday was a day of rest.

He showed the writer pieces of rock carrying free gold in large quantities. He has jars of it and sacks of it to show anybody who thinks it is a fraud.

The above interview is right from the lips of Zirn himself and people who have been hasty to condemn this section should visit it and see for themselves.

The Hot Wave.

The last few days have been noted for being what are known as regular scorers. The same hot wave is rolling all over the Pacific Coast and the Californians are getting even a worse dose. The thermometer got pretty close to 100 several times yesterday and day before. In California it has registered 114 and in Arizona one and twenty something. You cease counting in Arizona when it gets past one twenty. In the afternoons a brisk breeze springs up which takes the rough edge off the heat and in the night it is cool and pleasant. The atmosphere is dry and no cases of sunstrokes are reported.

Funeral of Ralph McQueen.

Yesterday Ralph McQueen, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McQueen, was buried from the residence at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by the Rev. C. L. Logan. The little infant's coffin was covered with flowers and there was a large attendance of people who shared a portion of the grief of the heart broken parents. Appropriate music was rendered by the choir and there was a large gathering at the grave to see the little innocent laid away to rest.

Bull Times.

Merchants say that they never saw such dull times in Carson before. There doesn't seem to be any money left in the city. The cause of this is the fact that everybody almost is out of town at watering places, and, of course, they have taken what money they have with them. A man needs every dollar he can scrape if he goes into the mountains for health. After the people who are abroad begin to return times will be easier.
